HONOURABLE SRI JUSTICE J.CHELAMESWAR
AND
HONOURABLE SRI JUSTICE D.APPARAO

WRIT PETITION No.12436 of 2006

31-07-2006

Between:

M.Krishna .. Petitioner.

and

1. The Collector and District Magistrate,
   Nalgonda and others

   Respondents.

ORDER (Per Hon'ble Sri Justice D.Apparao):

Dasari Janardhan was ordered to be detained by the 1st respondent-District Collector and District Magistrate, Nalgonda District, in C.C.No.1/59/2006/02, dated 13-03-2006 under Section 3(1) and (2) of the A.P.Prevention of Dangerous Activities of Boorleggers, Dacoits, Drug Offenders, Goondas, Immoral Traffaic Offenders and Land Grabbers Act, 1986 (for short 'the Act').

2. The petitioner, the Co-brother of Dasari Janardhan, challenges the validity of the order of the 1st respondent, as illegal, arbitrary, and violative of Section 3 (2) of the Act and seeks a declaration that the order is bad in law and prays that the detenu to be released forthwith by granting a writ of habeas corpus.

3. The order of detention was based on the following grounds:-

(1) That the detenu was found in possession of 40 liters of I.D.Liquor in two plastic cans. He was found distilling the liquor. He left 3000 ltrs of F.J.Wash and had absconded from the scene of offence leaving behind the utensils used for preparation of liquor. A case in COR No.198/2001-02 was registered on 10-07-2001 under Section 7 (A) and 8 (b) of the Prohibition Act, 1995. The said ID liquor on chemical analysis was found to be illicitly distilled liquor and another sample that was sent was F.J.Wash fit for distillation. A charge sheet is filed and a case is pending trial.

(2) He was also found in possession of 800 liters of

F.J.Wash in 4 big mud pots each containing 200 litres of F.J.Wash. The detenu had absconded from the scene of offence. A case in COR No.247 of 2001-02, dated 11-08-2001 was registered. The said F.J.Wash was sent to chemical examiner who on analysis opined that it was Fermented Jaggery Wash fit for distillation. A charge sheet was filed and case is coming on for trial.

(3) The detenu was found in possession of 35 liters of I.D.Liquor in three polythene bags on 21-05-2002 at Yella Reddyguda. A case in FIR 58 of 2002-03 was registered under Section 8 (b) of Prohibition Act. When the sample was sent to chemical examiner, he on analysis opined that it was illicitly distilled liquor.

(4) On 22-11-2002 at about 5.30 A.M. the detenu along with one Agu Chandraiah was found carrying 65 liters of I.D.Liquor in 65 plastic packets on a scooter. The Excise authorities arrested both the persons and seized the contraband. A case against them was registered under Section 8 (b) of the A.P.Prohibition Act, 1995 in COR No.442/2002-03, dated 22-11-2002. When the sample of the contraband was sent to Chemical Examiner, he found that the same was illicitly distilled liquor containing sediment and injurious to health and unfit for human consumption. A charge sheet was filed and the case is pending trial.

(5) On 20-10-2004 at about 5.30 P.M. the Excise authorities found the detenu in the premises bearing No.4-108/2 in Kondapaka gudem and on seeing them the detenu ran away. He then found plastic blue can containing 40 liters of I.D.Liquor, (3) plastic cans containing 30 liters of I.D.Liquor, totally 250 liters of I.D.Liquor, besides polythene bag containing about (50) kgs. of Navasagaram and one polythene bag containing about 5 kgs. Alam. They have also found 2 running stills, and six barrels each containing (200) liters of Fermented Jaggery Wash i.e., totally 1600 litres of F.J.Wash kept in the open place behind the said house. A case in COR No.349/04-05, dated 20-12-2004 was registered under Section 7 (a) of A.P.Prohibition Act, 1995, and Section 34 (e) of A.P. Excise Act. When the samples of the contraband were sent to the Chemical Examiner, on an analysis it was opined that the samples contain illicitly distilled liquor containing sediment and injurious to health and unfit for human consumption. The other sample was Fermented Wash fit for distillation. A charge was filed and pending for trial.

(6) On 15.4.2005 at about 12.45 p.m. the excise officials conducted raids in agricultural lands located in the outskirts of Kandapakagudem of Narketpaly mandal and found the detenu. On seeing them, the detenu ran away. The Excise authorities have found (2) mud pots containing (50) litres of Fermented Jaggery wash each i.e., a total of 100 litrs of Fermented Jaggery wash. A case in C.O.R.No.19/2005-2006, dated 15.4.2005 under Section 24(e) of A.P. Excise Act, 1995 was registered. When the sample of the contraband was sent to the Chemical Examiner, he after analysis opined that it contained fermented wash fit for distillation. A charge sheet was filed in the court and it is pending trial.

(7) On17.11.2005 at about 7.00 A.M. the excise officials found the detenu transporting 70 litrs of I.D.liquor on a scooter for the purpose of sale in Marriguda village. The detenu was arrested and the contraband was seized, a case in C.O.R.No.308/2005-2006, dated 17.11.2005 was registered for the offences under Sec.7(a) r/w 8(b) of A.P. Prohibition act, 1995. When the sample of the contraband was sent to Chemical Examiner, he analysed the sample and opined that the sample was illicitly distilled liquor and it is injurious to health and unfit for human consumption. A charge sheet was also filed and the case is pending trial.

(8) On 4.1.2006 at about 4.00 p.m. the excise officials found the detenue in possession of 20 litrs of I.Dliquor in a plastic can. On seeing the excise officials, the detenu ran away leaving the can, consequently they searched the house of the detenue No.4-108/9 of Kondapakagudem and agricultural lands, they found 9 bags of black jaggery each bag contains approximately 50 kgs of black jaggery, one bag of alum and 15 plastic barrels each barrel contains 200 litrs of Fermented Jaggery wash, totally 3000 B.Ls. The contraband was seized and a case was registered in C.O.R.No.406/2005-2006 dated 04.1.2006 for the offences under Sec.7(A)r/w 8(b) of A.P.Prohibition Act. When the sample of the contraband was sent to Chemical Examiner, he on an analysis opined that the samples contains I.D.liquor which is injurious to health and unfit for human consumption and F.J.wash fit for distillation.

4. The detaining authority considering the material placed before him, opined that the detenu is indulging in committing offences of illicit storage, transportation and sale and organizing Excise Crime in contravention of Section

7 (a) read with 8 (e) of A.P.Prohibition Act 1995. By committing the above illegal activities, he is a boot-legger as defined under Section 2(b) of the A.P.Prevention of Dangerous Activities of Bootleggers, Dacoits, Drug Offenders, Goondas, Immoral Traffic Offenders and Land Grabbers Act, 1986 (Act 1/86). He is indulging in lawless activities prejudicial to the Maintenance of the Public Order in this area.

5. Through G.O.Rt.No.1579, General Administration (L &O II) Department, dated 21-03-2006, the Government approved the detention order. The Advisory Board had confirmed the detention order. Based on the said recommendation of the Advisory Board, the Government confirmed the orders of detention by G.O.Rt.No.2124, General Administration (Law & Order.II) Department, dated 25-04-2006 for a period of 12 months from the date of detention i.e., 13-03-2006.

6. The Co-brother of the detenu challenged the detention on the grounds that the detention order cannot be passed where small quantities are involved. It is also contended that the order of detention cannot exceed three months at any one time. However, the order of detention is made for twelve months contrary to Section 3 (2) of the Act. The grounds are stale and remote. The chemical examiner did not mention that the contraband was injurious to health.

7. The thrust of the first argument is that the order of detention was vitiated because it was for a period of 12 months viz., more than three months contrary to Section 3 (2) of the Act. We do not see how this contention could be taken in the light of the decision of the Supreme Court in HARPREET KAUR v. STATE OF MAHARASHTRA[1]. A similar provision under Maharashtra Prevention of Dangerous Activities of Slumlords, Bootleggers land Drug Offenders Act, 1981 finds a place, which is impari materia to Section (3) of the A.P.Act 1 of 1986.

"Section 3 reads as follows:

"3. Power to make orders detaining certain persons:- (1) The State Government may, if satisfied with respect to any person that with a view to preventing him from acting in any manner prejudicial to the maintenance of public order; it is necessary so to do, make an order directing that such person is detained.

(2) If, having regard to the circumstances prevailing or likely to prevail in any area within the local limits of the jurisdiction of a District Magistrate or a Commissioner of Police, the State Government is satisfied that it is necessary so to do, it may, by order in writing, direct, that during such period as may be specified in the order such District Magistrate or Commissioner of Police may also, if satisfied as provided in sub-section (1), exercise the powers conferred by the said sub-section:

Provided that the period specified in the order made by the State Government under this sub-section shall not, in the first instance, exceed three months, but the State Government ;may, if satisfied as aforesaid that it is necessary so to do, amend such order to extend such period from time to time by any period not exceeding three months at any one time.

(3) When any order is made under this section by an officer mentioned in sub-section (2), he shall forthwith report the fact to the State Government, together with the grounds on which the order has been made and such other particulars as, in his opinion, have a bearing on the matter, and no such order shall remain in force for more than twelve days after the making thereof, unless, in the meantime, it has been approved by the State Government."

The learned Judges interpreting the Section observed:

A plain reading of the section shows that the State Government under Section 3 (1), if satisfied, with respect to any person that with a view to preventing him from acting in a manner prejudicial to the maintenance of "public order", it is necessary so to do, make an order of detention against the person concerned. Sub-section (2) of Section 3 deals with the delegation of powers by the State Government and provides that if the State Government is satisfied, having regard to the circumstances prevailing in any area within the local limits of the jurisdiction of a District Magistrate or a Commissioner of Police, it is necessary to empower District Magistrate or the Commissioner of > Police, as the case may be to exercise the powers of the State Government to order detention of a person as provided by sub-section (1), then the State Government may, by an order in writing direct that during such period as may be specified in the order, the District Magistrate or the Commissioner of Police may also if satisfied as provided in sub-section (1), exercise the powers of the State Government as conferred by sub-section (1). The proviso to sub-section (2), only lays down that the period of delegation of powers, specified in the order to be made by the State Government under sub-section (2), delegating to the District Magistrate or the Commissioner of Police the powers under sub-section (1) shall not in the first instance exceed three months. The proviso, therefore, has nothing to do with the period of detention of a detenu. The maximum period of detention is prescribed under Section 13 of the Act which lays down that a person may be detained in pursuance of any detention order made under the Act, which has been confirmed under Section 12 of the Act. It is, therefore, futile to contend that the order of detention in the instant case was vitiated because it was for a period of more than three months. The second argument, therefore, also fails." (emphasis supplied).

8. The learned counsel for the petitioner contended that the none of the analyst reports speak about the fact that it was injurious to health. Therefore, it cannot be said that it would endanger to public health.

9. A perusal of one of the analyst reports dated 20-03-2003 involved in Crime Nos. 420, 422, 428, 439, 436 and 437 of 2002-03, shows that there was categorical mention that the samples in all these crimes are illicitly distilled liquor containing sediment. They are injurious to health and unfit for human consumption. Therefore, the said contention has no basis.

10. The learned counsel for the detenu contended that the detaining authority must be satisfied that the proposed detention is likely to indulge in such illegal activities in future also. This is a satisfaction that could be reasonably arrived at by the detaining authority only by examining the material that is produced by the authority proposing his detention. In such a process, a detaining authority may not always take into consideration a stray or solitary incident which may not give rise to a reasonable apprehension or satisfaction as to such future act of the proposed detenu. Therefore, it is necessary for the authority proposing the detention of a person under the Act to produce such material, which shows the continuous previous illegal activities of the proposed detenu which would satisfy the detaining authority of the need for detaining such a person. In other words, the material produced by the authority proposing the detention should form a chain of incidents last of which will have to be proximate to the date of proposed detention while other acts must be proximate to each other.

11. This aspect of the matter is covered by a decision of the Supreme Court in COLLECTOR & DISTRICT MAGISTRATE, W.G.DISTRICT, ELURU, A.P. AND OTHERS v. SANGALA KONDAMMA[2]. It was a case where the order of detention was based on grounds relating to five incidents of boot-legging. The High Court held that two out of five grounds of detention were stale grounds and since the said two stale grounds could not be separated from the other grounds, the satisfaction of the detaining authority got vitiated and therefore the order of detention could not be sustained. Allowing the appeal, the Supreme Court held that if the facts placed before the detaining authority are proximate to each other and the last of the facts mentioned is proximate to the order of detention then the early incidents cannot be treated as stale and detention order cannot be set aside.

12. In the instant case, the order of detention was passed on 13-03-2006. It is seen that between the period

10-07-2001 and 04-01-2006, the detenu was involved in eight cases of boot-legging, which are reasonably proximate to each other and the last of the incident being proximate to the order of detention, it cannot be said the detaining authority was not justified in treating the two incidents as stale by taking them in isolation. The order of detention being proximate enough to each other, show the continuity of the acts of detenu. Therefore, we do not see any flaw in the order of detention nor can we say that the grounds are stale.

13. The learned counsel for the detenu contended that there is no material to show that the activities of the detenu as a boot-legger affect adversely or likely to affect adversely the maintenance of public order. A commission of an offence will not necessarily come within the purview of 'public order'. The offence alleged against the detenue in the order of detention and also the allegations made in the charge sheet could not be said to have created any feeling of insecurity or panic or terror among the members of the public of the area in question giving rise to the question of maintenance of public order. In support of his contention, he relied PIYUSH v. POLICE COMMISSIONER, AHMEDABAD[3]. That was a case where the detenu was found transporting foreign liquor. It would not cause widespread danger to life or public health. Obviously, considering the nature of substance that was transported, it was held that the conduct of the person does not create panic or fear in the minds of the members of the public upsetting the even tempo of life of the community, such act must be said to have a direct bearing on the question of maintenance of public order. The commission of an offence will not necessarily come within the purview of 'public order'.

14. The learned counsel relied OMPRAKASH v.

COMMISSIONER OF POLICE[4] for the same proposition where the detenue was found possessing deadly weapons beating innocent citizens. Creating fear by threatening and carrying on criminal anti-social activities by selling country and foreign liquor. Relying the earlier decision referred to, it was held that the materials available on record were not sufficient and adequate for holding that the alleged prejudicial activities of the detenue have either affected adversely or likely to affect adversely the maintenance of public order.

15. In HARPREET KAUR's case (1 supra), the Supreme Court while dealing the case of detenue indulging in transporting of illicit liquor and distributing the same in the locality and was keeping arms with him while transporting liquor, it was held:

> "The activities of the detenu were not merely bootlegging but went further to adversely affect the even tempo of the society by creating a feeling of insecurity among those who were likely to depose against him as also the law enforcement agencies. The fear psychosis created by the detenu in the witnesses was aimed at letting the crime go unpunished which has the potential of the society, and not merely some individual, to suffer. The activities of the detenu, therefore, squarely fall within the deeming provision enacted in the Explanation of Section 2 (a) of the Act, and as such the activities were not merely prejudicial to the maintenance of 'law and order' but were prejudicial to the maintenance of "public order".
> The Explanation to Section 2 (a) brings into effect a legal fiction as to the adverse effect on 'public order'. It is the fall-out of the activity of the "bootlegger" which determines whether 'public order' has been affected within the meaning of this deeming provision or not. This legislative intent has to be kept in view while dealing with detentions under the Act."

16. The learned Advocate General contended that, in the instant case, the detaining authority relying report of the chemical examiner, opined that it was illicitly distilled liquor unfit for human consumption and injurious to public health, causing prejudicial to the maintenance of public order and tranquility in public life. The order of detention therefore must be upheld.

17. Coming to the facts, the expert opinion is unambiguous and specific that it is unfit for human consumption. A Division Bench of this Court in B.VIJAYA KUMAR v. SECRETARY TO GOVERNMENT[5], while considering a case where the expert opined that it was unfit for human consumption, held:

> "It is implied that the liquor would cause widespread danger to life or public health. It cannot be gainsaid that liquor unfit for human consumption would necessarily cause grave and widespread danger to life or public health. If it is allowed to be sold in the State and consumed by the public at large. " In other words "that if the report is indicative of the fact that illicitly distilled liquor is unfit for human consumption, it impliedly means that consumption of such a liquor would cause danger to life and public health."

18. In the above said case, the detaining authority had referred only one case when contention was raised that the ground of detention was only one and therefore, the requirement of phrase in the definition of Section 2 (a) of the Act was not satisfied. It was held:

> "Even a single activity of a person referred to in Clause 2 (a) of the Act would have the effect of acting in any manner prejudicial to the maintenance of public order. Even a single activity which falls within Clause 2 (a) of the Act would be enough to bring the case within the ambit of Section 3 (1) of the Act."

19. In order to appreciate the proposition, Section 2 (a) of the Act is extracted hereunder:

> "(a) "Acting in any manner prejudicial to the maintenance of public order" means when a boot-legger, a dacoit, a drug-offender, a goonda, an immoral traffic offender or a land-grabber is engaged or is making preparations for engaging, in any of his activities as such, which affect adversely, or are likely to affect adversely, the maintenance of public order:

Explanation:- For the purpose of this clause public order shall be deemed to have been affected adversely, or shall be deemed likely to be affected adversely inter alia, if any of the activities of any of the persons referred to in this clause directly, or indirectly, is causing or calculated to cause any harm, danger or alarm or a feeling of insecurity among the general public or any action thereof or a grave or widespread danger to life or public health."

The learned Judge held:

"From a plain reading of the definition, it is clear that the phrase "acting in any manner prejudicial to the maintenance of public order" takes in its fold the activity of a hoot-legger, a dacoit, a drug-offender, a goonda, an immoral traffic offender or a land grabber, who is engaged or is making preparation for engaging any of its activities as such which affect adversely or likely to affect adversely the maintenance of public order. The explanation appended to the above definition clarified that for the purpose of Clause 2(a), 'public order' shall be deemed to have been affected adversely or shall be deemed likely to be affected adversely, inter alia, if any of the activities of any person referred to in the said clause, directly or indirectly, is causing or calculated to cause any harm, danger or alarm or a feeling of insecurity among the general public or any section thereof or a grave or widespread danger to life or public health."

20. Following the said case, a Full Bench of this Court in a decision reported in DODDI SHARADA v. COLLECTOR AND DISTRICT MAGISTRATE[6], opined:

"Mere sale of illicit liquor not a relevant ground for detention. However, if detaining authority is satisfied on material before him that such illicit liquor would cause danger to public health, it is a relevant ground for detention."

It further held:

"The opinion of the public Analyst that sample of illicit liquor seized is not potable or not fit for human consumption is relevant material for arriving at subjective satisfaction by detaining authority that it would cause danger to public health for detaining a person under preventive detention."

21. Since this is a case where the illicit arrack transported by the detenu was harmful and it contains substance which would cause danger to the life of public health, it would attract Section 3 (1) of the Act. The dicta laid by Full Bench decision of this Court in Doddi Sharada's case (6 supra), applies in all fours to the facts of the present case. Since there is a danger to public health or life, it cannot be said that the detenu had not acted in a manner prejudicial to the maintenance of public order. Therefore, we uphold the order of detention.

22. Accordingly, the Writ Petition is dismissed. No costs.
